COMMISSION ACTION

Aviation In-formation SPECIAL AIR 21 EDITION

On April 5, 2000 President Clinton signed into law the long-awaited Federal Aviation Administration reauthorization bill. This legislation finally "unlocks" the aviation trust fund, allowing all of the funds collected from aviation users to now be used for air traffic control modernization and airport improvements. This bill, known as "AIR 21," contains sweeping provisions which will facilitate unprecedented growth and improvement to the nation's air transportation system. Most of the FAA funding authorizations contained within the bill are applicable through fiscal year 2003. However, most other provisions represent permanent changes to the law. The official title of the bill (H.R. 1000), which is over 200 pages in length, is the Wendell H. Ford Aviation Investment and Reform Act for the 21st Century. The entire text is available from the Library of Congress at <http://thomas.loc.gov>. In the following paragraphs we have summarized some of the more important points.

AIRPORT IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM FUNDING

Unlike previous authorization legislation, AIR 21 is a multi-year bill which authorizes funding nationwide for the Airport Improvement Program (AIP) at the following levels: fiscal year 2000 - $2.475 billion; fiscal year 2001 - $3.2 billion; fiscal year 2002 - $3.3 billion; and fiscal year 2003 - $3.4 billion. Providing congress appropriates funds at the fully authorized level (at least $3.2 billion beginning in 2001), the following AIP changes will provide significant additional money for Michigan airports.

Money which is earmarked for a specific location (entitlement dollars) will be available to certain general aviation airports. As a result, 81 additional Michigan airports may now receive up to $150,000 each per year. This money is in addition to $11.7 million in state apportionment funds.

Entitlement funds for cargo airports will increase dramatically. In Michigan, a 100 percent increase from 1999 will bring a total of $1.4 million each year divided between Detroit Metro, Grand Rapids, Lansing, Detroit Willow Run, and Flint Bishop airports.

Funds have been specifically set aside to provide extra money for large reliever airports. In Michigan, Oakland-Pontiac and Detroit Willow Run will benefit.

Overall, Michigan airport funding will increase 40 percent from 1999 levels to $86.4 million in 2001 as a result of AIR 21!

PASSENGER FACILITY CHARGES

Passenger Facility Charges (PFCs) are ticket surcharges that air carrier airports are authorized to levy. The revenue from these charges is earmarked for a specific project that must enhance safety and security, increase competition, reduce congestion, or mitigate noise. As a result of AIR 21, the cap for PFCs is increased from $3.00 to $4.50. Large hub airports would, however, forfeit 75 percent of their entitlement dollars if they chose to levy this additional charge.

AIR SERVICE

A general policy statement has been added to federal aviation law stating that the U.S. Department of Transportation shall, in the public interest, "ensure that consumers in all regions of the United States, including those in small communities and rural remote areas, have access to affordable, regularly scheduled air service."

The Small Community Air Service Development Program will, if funds are appropriated by congress, provide $20 million in fiscal year 2001 and $27.5 million in both fiscal years 2002 and 2003. These funds will be available to provide financial assistance to an air carrier to subsidize service to an under-served community, for an under-served community to obtain service, or to a community for marketing and promotion. In order to be eligible, communities must have a history of insufficient air service or unreasonably high fares. Priority will be given to airports that can provide a portion of the cost through non-airport revenues. No more than four communities in the same state, or more than 40 communities nationwide, may be selected.

ACCESS TO HIGH DENSITY AIRPORTS

For nearly two decades, access to four of the nation's busiest airports has been controlled by a system of "slot" allocations. At Chicago O'Hare, New York Kennedy, New York La Guardia, and Washington National airports air carriers are required to procure a slot from the Department of Transportation for each scheduled arrival or departure. In addition, this system requires that general aviation pilots obtain a reservation for takeoff and landing at these airports. Immediately, AIR 21 creates a process for obtaining slot exemptions. Beginning in May 2000, a phase-out of slot requirements will begin. They will be eliminated at Chicago O'Hare by July 2002 and at both New York airports by January 2007. However, the slot rule will remain in effect at Washington National.

OTHER PROVISIONS

To insure the availability of precision instrument approaches during the transition to satellite navigation, the bill requires that $30 million be used for new Instrument Landing Systems (ILS) between 2000 and 2002.

The FAA is prohibited from eliminating human weather observers, in favor of automated systems, until 60 days after the agency determines and notifies congress that the system provides consistent reporting of changing weather.

A fine of $25,000 may be imposed on an individual who threatens to assault the crew of an airplane, another passenger, or poses a threat to the safety of an aircraft or its passengers.

Criminal penalties, of up to three years in prison, may be imposed on persons who operate, or attempt to operate, an aircraft without an airman's certificate.

The FAA is required to submit to congress a report on a comprehensive redesign of the national airspace system by December 31, 2000.

The FAA is directed to contract with the National Academy of Science for an independent study of air quality in passenger aircraft cabins.

The FAA and industry shall develop a model program for training aircraft mechanics.

With certain exceptions, new landfills will be prohibited within six miles of a small airport.

$450,000 each year is authorized for wildlife hazard mitigation.

The Michigan Aeronautics Commission met in Lansing on March 23, 2000. The meeting was held jointly with the State Transportation Commission. Action taken included approval of funding totaling $9.97 million for airport improvements across the state. Some projects have federal, state, and local funding; while others are funded from state and/or local sources alone. Commission approval for federally funded projects authorizes state participation, subject to issuance of a federal grant. Federal and state dollars for airport development are primarily from restricted, user generated funds. The primary sources of revenue are aviation fuel and passenger taxes, as well as aircraft registration fees.

Following are approved projects:
